PRESS RELEASE FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

JG Architectural Supply Provides Education to the Design Community

LINTHICUM, MD, May 3, 2007 - JG Architectural Supply offers educational presentations to architects, designers, retail, and building professionals regarding the environmental impact of various hardwood flooring products.

In the midst of the Green Building movement, many manufacturers of hardwood flooring seem to have jumped onto the wagon, rationalizing how their non-certified products are nonetheless environmentally responsible. While there may be truth to some of these claims, it can be difficult to determine which of these products are truly "green" and which are just "green-washed".

For those concerned about the responsibility of their hardwood flooring, one must consider many factors: the forestry practices, the materials and methods used in the manufacturing process, and even the means of transportation employed. All this and more is covered by JG Architectural Supply in their educational presentations – in an objective and analytical fashion.

While JG Architectural Supply is currently not an AIA Accredited Continuing Education Provider, their presentations qualify for self-reporting of LUs. More information can be obtained by calling 877-482-4771.

About JG Architectural Supply

JG Architectural Supply is a distributor/manufacturer of environmentally friendly hardwood flooring products. Founded in 2006 by John Gasparine, a former public health consultant, JG Architectural Supply has begun building a brand-name of flooring that meets two basic criteria: quality and environmental responsibility.
